Babasaheb Dr. B. R. Ambedkar reiterated that liberty, equality and fraternity were the social foundations of a democratic system of governance. Presenting the draft of the constitution in the Constituent Assembly on November 25th, 1949, he emphasized that these would not help India remain free for long. To make our freedom last forever, he laid emphasis on the social roots of political democracy in India. The road to social democracy lies through fraternity. Fraternity instils the feelings of unity, compassion and equality among the stakeholders of a democratic setup that in turn provides the solid base for the emergence of true liberty - liberty to do what one wants to do with a gaze on its social sustainability as well as without encroaching upon the similar rights of the fellow citizens.

Liberty, Equality, Fraternity, the trinity formula of instituting social democracy in independent India, coupled with Educate, Agitate, Organise aimed at annihilating caste from the social soil of India. Caste, in his firm views, was anti-nation. It precludes the emergence of democratic process of social bonding while dividing the society into mutually antagonistic groups with repulsion against each other. Caste sought loyalty of its members to strictly prohibit social interactions with the members of the other caste(s) placed at the lowest rung of the hierarchical caste scale. Babasaheb Dr. B. R. Ambedkar wanted his people to be educated to agitate against such a pernicious system of caste based social exclusion. The agitated people will organize themselves into a strong social force to democratically seeking equal rights in the state. It is in this crucial context that the seeds of fraternity would start sprouting slowly in an inclusive social living to provide solid base of social democracy in India for the longevity of its hard earned political democracy.

The recent most sinister us happenings in Kathua and Unnao in the states of J&K and Uttar Pradesh in India have shaken the world that how low humanity can fall in its own eyes. Such inhuman acts perpetrated on the innocent girls and in the case of Unnao the subsequent brutal killing of the hapless father of the rape victim speak volumes of hatred and violence prevalent in Indian society currently. Yet another equally disturbing communal trend that has been becoming an almost routine happening is the vandalization of the statues of Babasaheb Dr B. R. Ambedkar. Babasaheb Dr.B.R Ambedkar is now not only confined to the privileged list of top statesmen of India. His illustrious persona has entered into the front row of most intelligent and lovable personalities in the World. It is high time to follow his given path of leaving caste behind and to embrace his most sought after principle of fraternity to overcome the current crisis of gender violence and caste conflicts and rabid acts of communal flare up.
